
Scott W. Lutterloh

Assistant Deputy Chief of Naval Operations (Manpower, Personnel, Training & Education) OPNAV N1B

Mr. Lutterloh is assigned as Assistant Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Manpower, Personnel, Training and Education (OPNAV N1), and he also serves as the civilian Executive Advisor to the Chief of Naval Personnel. OPNAV N1 is responsible for the planning and programming of manpower, personnel, training, and education resources, budgeting for Navy personnel and for developing the information systems and tools to effectively manage Active and Reserve Sailors.

Previously, Mr. Lutterloh was assigned as Director, Information, Analysis and Development Division at OPNAV N1 from November 2008 through December 2012. He was responsible for policy, planning, and programming of Navy's training and education initiatives, which included Navy's Joint Professional Military Education, and Navy training requirements in acquisition programs and Human Systems Integration.

Mr. Lutterloh was selected as a DON Senior Executive in October 2006 upon selection as Director, Total Force Requirements Division, and Assistant Director for Requirements Integration on the Chief of Naval Operations staff. He was responsible for development, planning and programming of all U.S. Navy manpower requirements, and integrating military, civilian, and contractor constituencies across the Navy.

During 2006, Mr. Lutterloh served as Director, Training Systems Division in the Program Executive Office, Integrated Warfare Systems in Washington, D.C. As Program Manager, he was responsible for embedded training systems development, engineering, acquisition, installation, and maintenance onboard all surface ships in the U.S. Navy.

From October 2003 through February 2006, Mr. Lutterloh served as the Executive Director of the Center for Surface Combat Systems Training (CSCS) headquartered in Dahlgren, Va. He directed operations, maintenance, and tactical training for the United States and international surface combat systems. From 1996 until the establishment of CSCS in 2003, Mr. Lutterloh served as Executive Director of the AEGIS Training and Readiness Center (ATRC). During his tenure, ATRC established itself as the premiere training organization in the surface Navy.

Prior to his assignment at ATRC, Mr. Lutterloh was Director of the Logistics and Training Operating Center for LOGICON Syscon where he directed the complete range of defense related logistics services, training support, and training simulation contracts for the corporation.

Mr. Lutterloh has over 20 years in government Civilian Service and previously served in the United States Navy as both an enlisted Sailor and Officer. His active duty assignments included Main Propulsion Assistant on USS MACDONOUGH (DDG-39) and as the lead Surface Warfare Manpower, Personnel and Training Analyst on the staff of the Chief of Naval Personnel.

Mr. Lutterloh received his bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the U.S. Naval Academy in 1978. His Service Awards include the Superior Civilian Service Award (2006), and the Meritorious Civilian Service Award (2001). He is a member of the Surface Navy Association, American Society of Naval Engineers, and the U.S. Naval Institute.